

NDOTSHENI— SOUTH AFRICA

HAPPY THINGS IN THE COM-MUNITY!

- The drought has ended!
- We now have milk for our children!
- James Jarvis has helped us so much! (see main article)

Ndotsheni Daily

VOLUME 1, ISSUE 1

SOME TIME IN THE 1900'S

James Jarvis's Plans

James Jarvis, father of the recently murdered Arthur Jarvis, has taken his son's position in helping the natives of South Africa. He has made many new changes in the poor valley to help the black native people who live there. Jarvis has recently sent a large amount of milk to Ndotsheni, from his farm, to give to the small children there. These children have been malnourished for a long time because of the drought and this gift helped them very much. Jarvis has also come up with building a dam in Ndotsheni so that if another drought happens, they will still have a water supply.

The hills of Ixopo and Ndotsheni.